Manual brakes and BBK RX7 front brakes are a common cheap upgrade to the front of E30s. But they aren't a complete solution. Massive makes an adapter bracket to physically remove the booster. But those two mods alone won't give back the factory braking effort. I tried using a VW beetle (17mm) master cylinder.

Refit the manual pedal box, reattaching the brass rod to the brake pedal. Do not bother raising the brake pedal too high at this moment as you will want to see where the accelerator and the clutch pedal will sit and raise it to about the same height. Bolt the clutch master cylinder to the clutch pedal at the same time.
